

- _____. "Los 20 programas más vistos en la historia de la televisión privada en Colombia." El Tiempo [Bogotá]. 29 December 2014. Web. 3 October 2015.
- Rincón, Omar. Televisión, video y subjetividad. Bogotá: Grupo Editorial Norma, 2002. Print.
- _____. "Amamos a Pablo, odiamos a los políticos." Nueva Sociedad 255 (2015): 94-105. Print.
- _____. "Todos llevamos un narco adentro —un ensayo sobre la narco/cultura/telenovela como modo de entrada a la modernidad." Matrizes 7.2 (2013): 1-33. Print.
- _____. "Narco.estética y narco.cultura en Narco.lombia". Revista Nueva Sociedad 222 (2009): 147-163. Print.
- Salazar J., Alonso. La parábola de Pablo. Auge y caída de un gran capo del narcotráfico. Bogotá: Editorial Planeta Colombia, S.A., 2001. Print.
- Sánchez Sierra, Juan Carlos. "Telenovelas, narcotráfico y conciencia política en Latinoamérica. Perspectivas sobre un problema de estudio." Revista Científica Guillermo de Ockham. 11.2 (2013): 15-33. Print.
- "Serie sobre Pablo Escobar supera ya los 70 millones de abonados en Netflix." El Espectador [Bogotá]. Entretenimiento, 9 January 2016. Web. 18 January 2016.
- Soto Mayedo, Isabel. "Poder mediático, deshumanización y periodismo de drogas." Prensa Latina. Revista Contralínea, 10 (2012) 58-64. Print.
- TV By the Numbers. "Telemundo. Media's 'Pablo Escobar: El Patrón del Mal' Averaged Nearly 2.1 Million Viewers during Premiere Week—Up 58% Year-Over-Year in Time Period." 7 July 2016. Web. 13 June 2016.
- Uribe, Juana and Camilo Cano, creators. Pablo Escobar el Patrón del Mal. Caracol Television Productions, 2012. DVD.
- USA Media Consulting. Web. 21 January 2016.
- Vargas Llosa, Mario. El País [Madrid]. 25 August 2013. Web. 28 June 2016.
- Vergara, Carolina. "Narcotráfico, guerra y violencia: el auge en TV colombiana." Terra. 6 November 2013. <www.entretenimiento.terra.com.co/famosos/narcotrafico-guerra-y-violencia-el-auge-en-tv-colombiana> Web. 3 October 2015.

CONTRIBUTORS

Abdellatif Attafi is Professor of French at the College of Charleston. His writing examines topics such as identity and the brain drain. His articles have appeared in journals including Études Francophones, Cincinnati Romance Review, and L'Érudit Franco-Espagnol. He has published three novels: Le Rocher perdu (1996); Greffe de Rêves (2001) and Tanger à la croisée des vents (2009).

Nathan D. Brown (Ph.D. Virginia) is Assistant Professor at Furman University in Greenville, S.C. He studies the French Atlantic World with a focus on identity formation in eighteenth-century New France. He was previously on the faculty at Randolph-Macon College in Ashland, Va.

Benjamin Fraser (Ph.D. Arizona) is Chair of Foreign Languages and Literatures and Professor of Hispanic Studies at East Carolina University. His publications include 15 books and 70 articles exploring urban space, disability and Hispanic cultural production. Fraser is a senior editor of the Arizona Journal of Hispanic Cultural Studies, an associate editor of Hispania, the executive editor of the Journal of Urban Cultural Studies and a founding co-editor of the Hispanic Urban Studies book series.

Ronald J. Friis (Ph.D. Penn State) is Professor of Spanish at Furman University and the current Secretary-Treasurer of MIFLC. In addition to articles on twentieth century Chilean and Mexican poetry, he is the author of José Emilio Pacheco and the Poets of the Shadows (Bucknell UP, 2001) and co-author, with Tatiana Seeligman, of the Spanish conversation textbook Doble vía (Heinle Cengage, 2011).

David T. Gies (Ph.D. Pittsburgh) is Commonwealth Professor of Spanish in the Department of Spanish, Italian, and Portuguese at the University of Virginia. An expert on the literature of Enlightenment and Romance Spain, and contemporary Spanish film, Professor Gies has published fifteen books and critical editions of Spanish literature.

He has authored more than one hundred articles and one hundred thirty book reviews.

Alán José (Ph.D. Berkeley) is the Director of Global Strategic Development at Duke University. José has held also senior leadership positions in cultural public and non-profit organizations in Europe and North America focusing recently on the strategic recalibration of programmatic aspects and of the operational model of the humanities in higher education in the United States.

Jeremy Patterson (D.M.L. Middlebury) is Assistant Professor of French and Spanish and chair of the Division of Modern Language and Literature at Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C. He specializes in Caribbean literatures and issues of postcolonial trauma. His current research project analyzes the Caribbean short story as a locus for the literary development of social imaginaries.

Antonio Pérez-Núñez (Ph.D. Illinois) is Assistant Professor of Spanish and Linguistics at the College of Charleston. His current research interests focus on second language acquisition through writing and the effects of corrective feedback on grammatical development.

Shannon Polchow (Ph.D. Riverside) is Associate Professor of Spanish at the University of South Carolina Upstate and former assistant chair of the Department of Languages, Literature, and Composition. When she is not discussing curriculum changes and the future of Hispanic studies, she conducts research about the works of Miguel de Cervantes and other early modern Spanish writers.

Michaela Ruppert-Smith (Ph.D. Claremont Graduate University) is Adjunct Professor of German at the College of Charleston. A native of Switzerland, she has taught German and English language and literature as well as humanities at American and Swiss colleges. She has published with the National Collegiate Honors Council on best practices in Honors Education.

Andrea Meador Smith (Ph.D. Virginia) is Associate Professor of Hispanic Studies at Shenandoah University. Her research and writing address representations of race and gender in South American literature and film. She has taught Spanish courses at all levels for the University of Virginia, Shenandoah University, and Semester at Sea.

Sheri Spaine Long (Ph.D. UCLA) is Editor of Hispania, the scholarly journal of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese. Formerly a Professor of Spanish and department chairperson, Dr. Long taught at the University of Alabama at Birmingham, the United States Air Force Academy, and the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Nelly Zamora-Breckenridge (Ph.D. Colorado) is Associate Professor at Valparaiso University. Her principal areas of research are contemporary Colombian Novel and Latin American film studies.